Foreword

This is the first book written to raise the status of the Lunyole language. Writing this book has fulfilled one of the objectives of the Lunyole Language Association and SIL International who has supported and funded it. This is not a work done by the Banyole people alone, but has come about due to the support of expatriates who are facilitating the Banyole to translate the Bible from other languages. When great works such as this are written in Lunyole it gives respect to the Banyole people. We believe that this dictionary will be useful in teaching people to know how to read and write Lunyole—those who are in different villages and right across the world. Raising the status and exposure of the language in this way is important for all people who wish to write Lunyole well. This dictionary was written to give people the best Lunyole words with their correct meaning.

We acknowledge that one of our cultural strengths is language. Therefore, we are joyful and blessed to see this dictionary being compiled and published. This book will help our language not fade away, and its use will fight ignorance and increase development.

This dictionary will help those who speak Lunyole and those who want to learn to speak Lunyole since it contains the everyday language in use by the Banyole people.

The words in this dictionary are natural Lunyole language and they are written in the standard spelling (orthography) of Lunyole. It is a blessing to learn to read and write based on the standards set out in this book.

One of the objectives in writing this dictionary has been to include in it as many pure Lunyole words as possible. When this dictionary is used, it will be simple to learn the Lunyole language, just as dictionaries have done for other developed languages.

We thank the dictionary editors who used the computer to bring out the meaning of the words and for adding pictures to assist as learning aids. This dictionary will demonstrate the truth that knowledge is like fire. For example, it helps us see that borrowed words that we would otherwise call foreign have become part of our everyday language and therefore cannot be returned.

It is our hope that this book and what it contains will be like a source of water that does not dry up during the drought. With this dictionary, we hope to develop every Munyole into people who can be proud of our language.

We thank Sylvester Musimami who worked hard and persevered with defining the words in the dictionary even when sickness disturbed him. Alongside him, we thank others who have helped this book come to its current state.

We realise that this book may not be without errors, but our objective has been to publish what is good and ready for use. We welcome readers to go through it with an open heart remembering that writing does not get finished, as even the potter moulds and unmoulds—and what makes a carpenter stay at the roadside is to have an address.

Introduction

The Banyole people speak the Lunyole language. The Banyole reside primarily in Buteleja district in Eastern Uganda where the number of mother-tongue speakers is approximately 340,000 people.

Until now there has been no Lunyole dictionary available which could be used in schools, to encourage local writers to be more actively involved in committing their cultural stories, beliefs, and local history to paper, and to encourage the development of literature in Lunyole.

This dictionary has been compiled from various sources, with most of the words being collected during a community-based word collection workshop which was held in 2002. The initial database was based on Ebibono by'Olunyole n'Olusungu Olungeresa 'Words of Lunyole and English' compiled by Michael A. Whyte and published by the Lunyole Language Association in 1994. Subsequent linguistic research from 1999 - 2002 by Douglas A. Wicks added to the word list. Since then, many other words have been added and updated by those working under the auspices of SIL International.

We are very much aware of the limitations of this first edition and welcome feedback and corrections. It is our intention to continue working on this dictionary—especially to make corrections where needed. In addition it is planned to make the dictionary available in electronic format on a website. This website will contain the complete dictionary, with alphabetic and semantic meaning based search facilities.

Our hope and prayer is that this dictionary will be an important step toward long-term Lunyole language and culture preservation which should go hand in hand with development in the region.

How to use the dictionary

This Lunyole dictionary is in two parts. The first part is arranged alphabetically according to Lunyole words and gives definitions in English. The second part of the dictionary is arranged alphabetically according to English words and gives Lunyole equivalents.

Because the main purpose of this dictionary is to serve as a reference guide to the meanings of Lunyole words, you will find that the Lunyole-to-English part is larger than the English Index. This main part of the dictionary has definitions of 8750 Lunyole words. Use this part to find the meaning or spelling of a Lunyole word.

The English Index contains 9660 English words and gives simple translation equivalents in Lunyole. You will not find definitions in the English Index. Use the English Index if you know an English word and want to find which Lunyole words have similar meanings. You can then look up those words in the Lunyole-to-English part of the dictionary where you will find more complete information.

The Lunyole alphabet

There are 32 letters:

a aa b bb c d e ee f g h i ii j k l m n ny ŋ o oo p r s t u uu v w y z

The Lunyole-to-English part of the dictionary is arranged alphabetically according to the above order.

The parts of a dictionary entry

A simple entry has three parts. First is the Lunyole headword. This begins each entry and is shown in bold type. Second is the grammatical part of speech which is shown in an abbreviated form in italic type. (See the List of Abbreviations page where these are expanded). Third is the definition which shows the meaning of the Lunyole headword in English. In many of the definitions there are a number of equivalent English words that can be used to describe the Lunyole meaning. These are listed separated by commas ending with a semicolon. Sometimes, after the semicolon a further explaining phrase is given that serves to expand the definition.

In the first example given above, The Lunyole word, ‘ohuteetema’, only has one meaning. Sometimes however, words have multiple meanings. These multiple meanings are called senses and they are indicated in the dictionary by sense numbers. Each sense begins with a number followed by a dot. The various senses in an entry have distinct meanings, but they are all related in some way. That is why they are given numbers and listed under a single Lunyole headword.

Sense 2 Sense 1 Sense 3

ohufuula v. 1 • change s.t. so that it becomes different or alters state.
2 • dye; add colour to s.t. to change its colour.
3 • turn s.t. so that it is upside down or inside out.

Homonym numbers

Plurals

ebasa₁ Pl: amabasa. n. blister.
ebasa₂ Pl: ebasa. n. ceremony of merry making because of having had twins.

Occasionally you will notice that the headword is immediately followed by a small lowered number. The lowered number is used to distinguish what we call homonyms. Homonyms are words that have the same spelling but are unrelated in meaning.

Words that describe things are called nouns and are indicated with n. as the part of speech. When you want to look up a Lunyole noun you should look for the singular form of the noun. E.g., in the example above, a blister is listed with the Lunyole headword ‘ebasa’, not ‘amabasa’. If there is a plural form it will be listed after the singular form and preceded with the label Pl. In some few instances the plural form is more common and will be listed as the headword. If there is a singular form, then it will be preceded with the label Sg.

Sometimes a meaning is figurative, and not literal. It may be a metaphor or an idiom. In these cases after the sense number you may find the label Metaphor. or Idiom. A metaphor indicates that this sense uses the Lunyole word in a way that is not literal. An idiom is similar—it is a phrase with a meaning that cannot be determined from the individual words that make up that phrase. In other cases you may see Euph. or Taboo. A euphemism is a polite obwogi n. 1 • sharpness; what a knife should be like for cutting.

Metaphor

2 • Metaphor. intelligence, cleverness; ability to understand, learn and have opinions based on reason.

way of expressing a meaning that would otherwise be disrespectful or too harsh. Taboo indicates that the Lunyole word is considered offensive, and should not be used in normal conversation.

You may also notice words that appear in bold, like a Lunyole headword, yet they are indented from the margin. These words are sub entries. They are related to the Lunyole headword that precedes them and are derived from that headword. They are indented to show this relationship.

Sub Entry

Variant

ohuhaada Var: ohuhadaasa. v. make s.t. firm, tight, secure; fix things firmly when joining them.
ohwehaada v. Metaphor. work hard, be determined, consistent, focused on achieving some goal.

Minor Entry

kalali n. See main entry: kamulali.

Sometime a Lunyole headword will have a slightly different sound or spelling dependant on the speaker who uses the word. These are called variants. If a variant is known it will be listed immediately after the headword and is preceded with the label Var: If a variant or a sub entry has a spelling that begins in a different way to their parent headword then the subentry or the variant will be found as a minor entry in the correct alphabetical place in the dictionary. The label, See main entry: will refer you back to the main headword where the full definition of the variant or sub entry will be found.

Synonym

Where a word is similar in meaning to another word in a different part of the dictionary this will be marked with the label Syn: indicating that the two words are synonyms. Only some synonyms have been marked in this first edition of the dictionary.

esengero Pl: amasengero. n.
 church; place where people pay homage to God by offering sacrifices. Syn: esinzizo.

Borrowed word

omupuliisi Pl: abapuliisi. From:
 English. n. police officer.

Where it is known that a word has originally come from another language, then this has been indicated by the label: From:

Scientific name

Some plant and animal terms have been given their proper scientific names. This name, if known, will be underlined and italicised.

engwe Pl: engwe. n. sp. Panthera pardus fam. Felidae. Leopard; brown carnivore with white legs and black spots all over its body.
Syn: etiho.
